

Change the Game. VoX Agent Program

Grow your business with hosted VoIP solutions from VoX.

Millions of consumers are realizing the benefits of Voice over IP (VoIP). The technology delivers convenient and innovative telephone features, great flexibility and substantial cost savings. It's also opening the door for non-traditional players to capture new revenue with minimal upfront investment. VoX works with a small number of carefully selected Agents including service providers, consultants, publishers and online retailers. Do you have a strong customer base that includes broadband Internet users who would like to get more for their money when it comes to phone service? Are you committed to driving exceptional results for exceptional reward? If so, we'd like to hear from you.

Why VoX?

VoX offers a wide variety of packaged VoIP services for residential and small business customers – from our entry-level Basic plan to our Unlimited plan with all-you-can-talk calling across the US, Puerto Rico and Canada. Following are just a few of the benefits of becoming a VoX Agent:

- Deliver feature-rich, high quality VoIP services that complement and add value to your existing offerings.
- Drive immediate revenue with minimal upfront investment. As a VoX agent, you'll earn a residual commission check or larger one-time payment for every subscriber you sign up for VoX VoIP services.
- Track commissions, order status and account activity with VoX's online management tools. VoX handles everything from provisioning to billing and customer support.
- Customize the VoX user interface to reflect your unique brand.
- Provide advanced features that typically cost extra. That's right. Features such as voicemail, three-way calling, do not disturb, call return and caller ID, are standard.
- Offer some of the industry's most aggressive rates on International calling. Ask us to show you a comparison.

- Take their VoX phone adapter with them to make and receive calls almost anywhere they have a broadband connection
- Enjoy tremendous savings on long distance and International calling
- Realize the advantages of VoIP without sacrificing quality
- Plus, they may be able to keep their existing phone number

How it works

VoX uses VoIP, or Voice over Internet Protocol, which enables your customers to make and receive phone calls through the Internet. Voice is converted into packets of data, sent out over the Internet through a broadband connection, and reassembled at the other end of the line. VoX provides an adapter that is plugged in between the customer's computer and cable or DSL modem. A standard telephone is also plugged into the adapter – allowing users to place and receive calls in the same way they do today.

VoX developed its nationwide network using its proprietary SIP softswitch. The network, which leverages server cluster technology and runs on a Linux operating system, provides a load balanced environment that is stable and highly scalable. As a result, you can rest assured your customers will experience the quality and reliability they expect from their phone service. Additionally, the design of the VoX platform makes it easy for us to add new applications, allowing immediate response to market dynamics, demand and regulatory changes. Simply put, VoX is a good call!

The following features are standard on the VoX network:

- Voicemail
- Caller ID
- Call Waiting
- Call Forwarding
- Three Way Calling
- Area Code Selection
- Call Return
- Caller ID Block
- Anonymous Call Rejection
- Repeat Dialing/Redial
- International Call Blocking
- Directory Assistance Blocking
- Do Not Disturb
- Speed Dial
- Online Account Management
- Call Failover

For a small monthly fee VoX also offers:

- Toll Free Numbers
- Virtual Numbers
- 411 Directory Assistance
- Local Number Portability
